CHRIST BEFORE PILATE.

PAINTED BY MUNKACSY.

The original picture is one of the grandest paintings that has been given to the world in modern times. It covers about twenty by thirty feet of canvas, the figures all being life size. Everybody is familiar with the story. The scene is early morning in the prison or cell of the residence of the Roman governor at Jerusalem. The picture is drawn from descriptions in the New Testament of the appearance and trial of Christ before Pilate. It is there related that "when he was accused of the priests and elders, he answered nothing." "And Pilate answered and said unto them: 'What will ye that I shall do unto him whom ye call King of the Jews?' and they cried out again, 'crucify him!'" In the center of the picture is the figure of the Saviour, with his hands bound, erect, composed, gazing steadfastly on the face of Pilate. Around and behind him crowd the rabble of Jerusalem, some frantic, others attracted by idle curiosity, others apparently bent merely on killing time. In the immediate foreground is a Roman soldier holding the mob in check with the shaft of his spear. Pontius Pilate sits as the representative of Caesar on the judgment throne. He is in a dithering and is greatly perplexed. He knows nothing about Christ, but dare not resist the clamor of the people. On the right of Pilate, stands Caiaphas, the chief priest, with his arm extended toward the excited populace. The figure pressing forward in the crowd with uplifted arms is a ruffian of the lowest type. He is shouting "Crucify Him! Crucify Him!" On the left of Pilate sit two elders, watching the proceedings with deep interest. Between Christ and Caiaphas, sitting on a bench, is a rich banker, looking on with contemptuous curiosity. Near him is a young rowdy, leaning over the railing and scoffing in the face of Jesus. Perched on a high stool by the side of the judgment seat and resting his head against the wall is a scribe who views the scene with an air of weary indifference. A knot of old men is seated in an angle of the room to the left of the banker. They are apparently arguing Christ's claim that he is the promised Messiah. Conspicuously raised above the heads of the crowd is a young mother with a beautiful face, holding a child in her arms, and looking at Jesus with tenderness and compassion. Through the whole picture are groups of figures and faces reflecting the different emotions that animate each individual.

This picture has been on exhibition in the principal cities of Europe and is now being exhibited in America. It has been viewed by millions of people and has created more sensation throughout the entire civilized world than any other painting ever produced. In the city of New York it was on exhibition several months and was seen by hundreds of thousands of people. It was recently sold to John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, for $120,000 in cash.

Michael von Munkacsy, the painter of this wonderful picture, was born in 1844 in the fortress of Munkacsy, Hungary. His parents died when he was five years old, and a poor uncle who took charge of him, apprenticed him to a carpenter. Some students at a college where he was working taught him to read and write. He took an especial interest in history and poetry. His first ideas of painting were obtained from a portrait painter, who instructed him in drawing and also in literature. He soon began to give drawing lessons himself. His first successful painting was that of the entire family of a tailor, for which he received a coat in payment. As soon as he was able he went to Vienna and studied in the museums. His first artistic triumph was "The Last Day of a Man Condemned to Death," and it established the universal fame of the painter. It created a great sensation at Paris and won him a medal. This picture was followed by "An Episode of the Hungarian War of 1849," the "Night Strollers," the "Lawbreaker's Shop," and others, all of which created great interest throughout Europe, and Munkacsy's name, although he was but thirty-one years of age, soon filled the entire artistic world.

PHOTO-ETCHING.
A photo etching by the Manhattan Art Company of this famous painting is a fine simile of the original picture, and is considered the most perfect reproduction of it that has ever been offered for sale. The light and shades are faithfully portrayed, and the beautiful life-like effects produced by the original are preserved in this copy. The retail price of this etching is $1, but THE EXAMINER takes pleasure in announcing that it has perfected arrangements by which every subscriber to the WEEKLY EXAMINER or SUNDAY EXAMINER, paying one year ahead will be sent one FREE OF COST, SUNDAY EXAMINER, $2, WEEKLY EXAMINER, $1.25. A copy of this picture can be seen at THE EXAMINER office.

The House of Lords is the most popular resort Waco has ever known.

There is a breath of heaven about the helpless and innocent child. The light of angels hovers about the tiny form, and the spirit of omniscience shines out its tiny features. There is no reason that the purity, serenity and brightness of the little face should be marred with pains caused by a disordered stomach, when Morris' Cascarine will effect a permanent cure.

The House of Lords.

A Triple Alliance.
Unhappily for the wretched victims of their assaults, 35 poppets, one fiction and grotesque are faithful allies. When one of these for attacks the system, the other two speedily follow in its wake, and consequently make their onslaught successful. But not so easily, if Hostetter's Stomach Bitters be used to help the onset. The Bitters easily extricate these impostors as St. George is depicted in the act of doing to the dragon in the seal signature upon the glass bottles which contain the medicine. Their light, like their advance, is nearly instantaneous. Their untutored doctors, their creditably retrained, leaving health master of the position and strongly endorsed by the Bitters. This grand further is also a reliable remedy for such cases as the insidious assaults of malarial disease, and stops the approach of rheumatism. It, moreover, gives more complete and imparts vigor to the weak.

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Endorsed by the heads of the great Universities as the Strongest, Purest, and most healthful. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder that does not contain Ammonia, Alum, or any other harmful substance. IMMIGRATION!
Just a year ago I started the tea, coffee and baking powder business. True, the experience of my predecessors in the same line was anything but encouraging, but I had confidence in myself, having made a success of the business in Galveston, and finding 20,000 inhabitants here all using stale roasted coffee and too high-priced baking powder, I made up my mind to camp here with my battery. The result is this, I am not going to California, and my business gives employment to three men. Fifty grocers buy my goods. Last month two tons of coffee was roasted, ground and sold, some thousands of cans of baking powder, spices and mustard, and considerable tea, etc. I take pleasure in stating that my business is now a necessity, a success and on a paying basis. If every man and woman make up their minds to patronize home industries and thereby get better and fresher goods, they will make themselves the more influential. Immigrant agents, possible capitalists will not invest a dollar in a city if they find its local industries a failure for want of home support. Thanking the citizens of Waco for their generous patronage, I remain yours truly,
Philip L. Alexandre.
